failed to find proof, either in sacred or profane history, that Adam was a farmer. The Bible account is, that "God planted a garden eastward in Eden and there he put the man whom he had formed." The account Black and Colored Germania Cloths, further states, that "out of the ground the Lord God made to grow every tree that is pleasant to the sight and good for food .- Ladier' Kill Silk, Caschemere, Bea-And the Lord God put the man into the garden of Eden to dress it and keep it.

The only labor his apologists can claim for Mill and Cross Cut Saws, White Lead, Nails, had proved himself unworthy of the trust, &c., &c. and had been so mean as to try to throw all the blame upon his wife, "thenceforward the earth should produce thorns and thistles, and that in the sweat of his brow he should eat bread all the days of his natural life." All this does not prove that Adam ever plowed, planted or tilled a single square foot of land, but on the contrary, it is prima facia evidence that he was an indolent and slothful, supporting himself upon the crops that the earth produced, without a single effort of his, and therefore totally unworthy of the honorable apellation of a farmer. See what a legacy he bequathed to his posterity. CAIN AS A FARMER.

Cain, his eldest son, tried to be a farmer, farmer, for his work was not done in a manner that was acceptable to the Lord .-He was, doubtless, like his father, indolent, disobedient, refractory, and a man of violent temper, who in a fit of unbounded jealousy and passion murdered his brother .-For indulging in the evil disposition which prompted him to commit this wanton act of violence toward an innocent and unoffending brother, the Lord pronounced upon bim a curse. Cain was admonished by the Lord, that under such a course of shiftless indolence and bad husbandry the earth would never yield to him her strength, and that the reckless, violent disposition that he was harboring and cultivating in his heart, would make him a vagabond and fugitive in the earth.

NOAH, ABRAM AND OTHER ANCIENT FARMERS. Among the ancients who honored this profession, we can mention Noah, Abram, Jacob and his sons, Laban, Moses, and scores of others who were equally distinguished for all the good qualities which human nature may acquire—as well as many who have lived nearer to our own times, and have considered themselves honored by

PROFITS OF FARMING.

Although farming does not lead to the rapid accumulation of wealth, yet it yields a competence to the industrious and frugal, and is the most independent calling in life. The items of profit, though apparently small in themselves, amount when those for the year are added together, to no inconsiderable sum. And a farmer's expenditures in money being less than is required by other kinds of business, nearly every article for the support of his family being raised on his farm, his balance sheet shows a healthy and thriving business at the close of the year. Commerce and manufactures are the basis of large cities, and the sources of rapid accumulation of wealth, the legitimate products of which are luxury and ex-These crept into the Roman Republic, and undermined the very foundation on which it was established-industry, morality and virtue. Licentiousness and vice of every kind following in their turn, corrupting the better portion of her people, and in due time did their work of destruction .-Thus terminated the existence of one of the most magnificent political structures of which the old world could beast,

HEALTHINESS OF FARMING. Agriculture, from the constant and regular employment it gives, is most conducive to health The labor it requires is calculated to knit the frame and give strength and vigor to the muscular system; besides, it is mostly carried on in the open air, which tends to promote a free and generous per-spiration and give tone and clasticity to the body; while many kinds of mechanical and other employments are rendered unhealthy by the constrained position in which they must be performed, and the close confinewere it not for the strong hand of necessity wicked; the constant and regulary employment, therefore, which a farm requires, makes it promotive of good morals; wherea, in other employments, where those engaged are more dependent on others, their labor is more irregular; this often leads them to spend a portion of their time in idleness. and thus bad habits are contracted, acquaintance is formed with persons of impure morals, and their characters and standing in somany reasons why persons who live in cities are more liable to become profane, intemperate and vicious than those who reside in the country. The business of farming is one which renders mankind more or less independent of each other, but impresses their minds deeply with a sense of their dependence on the Divine Providence; for they know that they may cultivate his land in the best possible manner, and plant it with the best of seed; yet, unless God gives a favorable season they can raise no crop.— They constantly realize the truth of the holy oracle, that "Paul may plant and Apollos water, but God giveth the increase."-There is no employment that leads a man to reflect so much upon the character and works of God as farming, and consequently practice of virtuous principles.

> The Forest Wine-The medicinal properties of the Forest Wine are different from hose of the Pills, but the efficaev of each remedy harmonize together, and in the cure of some disorders one Remedy is as important to the other as water and food are for our existence. I have pointed out in the following directions some of the cases which require only the Pills, and other cases which require only the also some of the cases which require both the Wine and the Pills to ensure the cure. The combined action of both Remedies have a more powerful and searching efficacy, and cure soonr than either remedy alone in all such cases as have recommended them together.

One purgative dose of the Forest Pills is warranted to cure any Bilious disorder, or any complaint arising from foul stomach and morbid con dition of the bowels. One or two purgative doses will cure Fevers. One'Box of the Pills and a Bottle of the Wine are warranted to break up and cure the most severe Colds, Coughs, and Pain in the Breast. (I have never tried my Remedies in the most advanced stages of consumption, and cannot warrant them to cure it,) but old and seated Colds, and Coughs, and Pain in the Breast, these Remedics cure sooner than anything I ever knew or heard of. One bottle of the Wine and a Box of the Pills are warranted to cure the Asthma, but some and cases require more.

The Forest Remedies give immediate relief in Dyspepsia and Indigestion, and one or two Boxes and as many Bottles are warranted to cure the most severe cases of this distressing complaint.

The efficacy of the Forest Remedies in Rheumatism is very singular, some of the most distressing cases I ever saw have been cured by them in twelve days' time, while some other cases, (apparently not so bad,) it took nearly three months before the complaint yielded to in the latest styles.
